DOORWAYS TO MIAMI

62 M BOOK 63
“Doorways to Miami” is the theme selected by the 1962-63 M-Book staff as they attempt to answer many of the questions you undoubtedly have pertaining to the University, to academic work, to campus activities, to college life at Miami, and to the town of Oxford.

Hence the M-Book offers its services as a guide for an all-campus handbook tour. It is designed to be both informative and functional. The M-Book is a supplement to official University publications prepared for new students, such as The Common Curriculum at Miami University.

Compilation of the M-Book is the responsibility of a group of students with the assistance of an administrative adviser. It is published by the University.

The staff hopes that you will enjoy your years at Miami as we are enjoying ours. We assure you that it is true that the opportunity you have can be exciting and rewarding as the Doorways to Miami open.
Alma Mater

Old Miami, from thy hill-crest
Thou hast watched the decades roll,
While thy sons have quanted from thee,
Sturdy hearted, pure of soul.

Chorus

Old Miami, New Miami,
Days of old and days to be.
Weave the story of thy glory—
Our Miami, here's to thee!

Aging in the simple splendor,
Thou the calm and they thy storm,
Thou didst give them joy in compact,
Strength from thee sustained their arms.

Thou shalt stand a constant beacon,
Crimson towers against the sky,
Men shall ever seek thy guiding,
Power like thine shall never die.

March Song

Miami old, to thee our love we bring,
To thee our hearts and minds will ever cling,
Thy fame of other days, thy gifts so true,
Call us today to sing our praise to thee.

Chorus

Love and honor to Miami,
Our college old and grand,
Proudly we shall ever hail thee,
Over all the land—

Alma Mater now we praise thee,
Sing joyfully this lay
Love and honor to Miami!
Forever and a day.

Thy clima, thy hills, thy skies of azure hue,
To them is deepest inspiration due,
Thy stately towers upon the hilltop fair,
To them do we our grateful homage bear.

On land and sea, our hearts will ever be,
The trust, bravest man can show to thee,
Our duty ever in our loyalty,
To guard thy name through all eternity.

The President of the University welcomes the Class of 1966

Here you meet the Dean of Students, Dean of Men, Dean of Women

Getting to know your university: a little of its long and distinguished history, a few of its traditions, some of the things that make Miami a very special university

Life in a residence university: the friends you'll make, your roommates, counselors in your hall, the Freshman Adviser, hall organization; some tips on campus dress, a few of the services provided for students, and general information for those new to campus living

The academic organization of the University in brief, governing groups from Board of Trustees to Freshman Council; some of the more important rules and regulations

Getting to know Miami's buildings

The campus map in 1967

Religious life and organizations on the campus and in Oxford

Extra-curricular: the activities and organizations that add so much to well-rounded life on the campus

Athletics: intramural and intercollegiate for the men; the women's varsity sports program

The Greeks at Miami: fraternities and sororities and a brief survey of their activities

Campus dictionary: expressions peculiar to Miami—the mark of being "in"

The pictures on this page represent five phases of the Miami University story. At the top is the state capital at Chillicothe, the building in which the legislation was enacted on February 17, 1809, establishing the University. . . . Next in order depicts the wide wooded expanse of part of the campus. . . . Third is a spot on Main Campus showing the happy combination of old and new: Alden Hall, left, 1826, the oldest building, and right, the Administration Building. . . . Fourth is Laws Hall, named for one of Miami's most versatile alumni, Samuel Spade Laws, Class of 1848. . . . And finally, the outstanding day for every student, Commencement.
Each new student generation is a welcome addition to Miami University. The adventure of college is a challenging opportunity.

There is a great deal of public criticism about college students today. They are accused of many crimes and misdemeanors. It is commonly said that students today are too much interested in themselves, and that they evidence little concern with the important events of state, national, and international affairs around them. It is said that students today know little about the history of their country, the traditions of our culture, and the unique institutions of our society. It is commonly said that students today have little appreciation or knowledge about music, art, drama, and literature. It is commonly said today that students fail to make the most of their abilities and are content simply to get by.

Miami University has a great deal to offer each and every individual person who enrolls here. No student is compelled to study, to attend lectures, to visit our art gallery, to watch our athletic contests, to hear fine music, to participate in the wide variety of campus activities and organizations of the University. If a student fails to meet minimum satisfactory standards of scholarship, we have no choice except to ask the student to withdraw. If a student is unwilling to meet the minimum standards of social conduct, which are essential on a campus of our type, we have no choice but to request withdrawal. Within these broad limits students can largely do as they will. The University can nearly afford opportunity. It is the student who must take advantage of it.

Some students each year find college a frustrating experience. Some students find that they cannot handle the responsibilities of individual decision making. Some students are tickled by any academic or social regulation. The number of such students is fortunately small. I hope there will be only a few such persons in the Class of 1966.

Higher education is a privilege. The number of young people wishing to go to college is mounting rapidly. The facilities for higher education in our society are limited. Those who go to college today have a special obligation to make the best use of the privilege they enjoy.

Higher education is expensive. To some extent college students are able to borrow and to work in order to obtain the funds required for higher education. Many students are fortunate to have families willing to support their college study. The State of Ohio, through appropriation from tax funds, extends a scholarship to every student who studies at Miami University. Because higher education is a social utility, it is also a social cost.

No student can afford to be indifferent to the financial sacrifice of society which permits his enrollment at Miami University. These are serious times. They call for serious students. But college should also be a period of pleasant experiences, personal friendships, social maturity, and broadening intellectual horizons. This can be your experience at Miami University if you wish to make it so.

With best wishes to all who enter the Miami University Class of 1966.

JOHN D. MILLETT
President

The President's Message to the Class of 1966
Within the next few months you will be making some of the most critical decisions you will ever be called upon to make. They will affect what you believe, what you learn, and what you earn. We are glad that you have chosen Miami University as the place to continue preparing yourself for these decisions.

You have come from many different backgrounds and with varying amounts of generally superior preparation. Quite soon, you will be called upon, on many occasions, to draw upon these resources to establish your role in our community. As the theme of this book suggests, there are many doorways for your inspection and passage. The rooms or activities beyond offer all the excitement and challenge imaginable. Your future success will depend upon which doors you will choose.

The coming four years are the most precious years of your academic career.

You will have an opportunity, never again possible, to explore the realms of ideas with others who are equally concerned. The productive marvels of our society make this exploration possible for our youth. Our way of life demands a highly educated citizenry for its continuation. Unfortunately, there are many potential distractions from the important academic endeavors. Social affairs, athletic contests, and student activities are all designed to supplement or give an opportunity for expression of the central program of classroom instruction. Sadly, however, some students choose to place their major energies in these extracurricular activities and are distracted from the main purpose of college—the excitement of learning through the direction of the faculty.

Many services are made available to assist students in their pursuit of learning. The residence hall programs, the health and counseling services, the financial assistance agencies, the religious foundations, the personnel deans' staffs, to mention a few, are examples of these student services. It is hoped that you will take advantage of these services, but more important, it is hoped that your primary associates will be those who share the same academic interests.

We welcome you to the proud and enthusiastic Miami family.
Miami is now your university—an affiliation of which you can be proud in any company. On this page is a first lesson in her history which began even before Ohio was a state.

One of the oldest colleges in the Midwest, Miami is a state-supported institution which keeps the atmosphere and traditions of a small independent college and cherishes the ideals of the liberal arts.

The University was chartered on February 17, 1809, by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio. In so doing it completed an agreement made in 1798 by Judge John Cleves Symmes when he arranged a purchase of a million acres of land between the two Miami rivers. In his contract with Congress he promised to set aside a township to support a college within the purchase.

The Miami University did not begin college instruction until November 1, 1844, when the first permanent building—later the first Harrison Hall—was ready. The first President was Dr. Robert Hamilton Bishop, whose family name you find on today's campus.

Students came from great distances to this university which became well-known as "The Yale of the Early West." The educational program was rigorous, and it produced lawyers, ministers, doctors, educators whose influence was wide-spread.

Old Miami was a college for men only, but Oxford was also a center for the education of young women. (Coeducation at the University did not begin until after Miami reopened in 1889 and New Miami began.)

The Civil War came very close to Miami because of the large number of men from southern states who came to school here. Volunteer companies drilled on the campus in 1861, soon they were inducted into the Union and the Confederate armies and men from Miami fought on both sides.

After the war the fortunes of the University declined, and after Commencement in the summer of 1875 the doors were closed to allow land rents from the college township to accumulate and other means to be found. Through the efforts of alumni (among them were ten Civil War generals, seven United States senators, eight state governors, six-two Congressmen, seven U. S. ministers to foreign governments, college and university presidents, editors, and one President of the United States), Miami responded with financial support from the state.

In pictures of Old Miami you will see three buildings, two of them—Elliott and Steadard—are here today. The new Harrison Hall stands on the site of the first building, Old Main. Soon after the reopening of the University new buildings were constructed to provide classrooms for the ever-growing student body. The process still continues.

Miami's system of residence halls is one of the largest in the Nation. One of the women's halls was the principal building of Oxford College for Women which was merged with Miami in 1948.

During World War II Miami conducted military training programs for more than 10,000 men and women while continuing its civilian educational program.

The Miami of today, with more than seventy buildings, is greatly changed from the Miami of a century ago. Yet in essential ways it is still the same.

To know more of the history of your university you will wish to read The Miami Years: 1809-1929 by Professor Walter Havighurst and former President Alfred H. Upham's Old Miami.
In the fall of 1914 when the first Miami students began going uptown for haircuts, the campus near the Administration Building. The halls are festooned with the ivy of each quarter hour since Beta Theta Pi gave them to the University at the time of the fraternity’s centennial celebration in 1919.

Slant Walk, shortest route through the campus to High Street, in the since the fall of 1914 when the first Miami students began going uptown for haircuts, has changed from dirt to gravel to red brick to cement. The famed walk begins at Irving Hall and ends at High Street and Campus Avenue where the Centennial Gates of the Class of 1919 stand.

There are other diagonal walks on the campus, but the Slant Walk everyone knows is this one along which a campus landmark, Thode’s fountain, offers refreshment.

First fountain along Slant Walk was the gift of an Oxford bricklayer and ardent Redskin football fan. It was built early in the 1900’s and was kept in repair by the donor as long as he lived. In 1931, after a bitter winter had damaged the rock structure beyond repair, the present fountain was built. On it a brass plaque reads: “To replace the one-time gift of the friend whose name it bears.”

In getting to know Miami there are so many things of interest which you can miss for a long time. Among these are:

On your first visit to Benton Hall you will find George Washington, life size, exactly, watching over the lobby.

The statue, one of the six bronze copies made of the famous work in the French artist, Jean Antoine Houdon, was given to the University in 1920 by Samuel Spahr, Law, the graduate for whom Law Hall is named. It had been in his possession for many years and had been exhibited in famous galleries. As the molds were destroyed after the six copies were made, the statue is both rare and valuable.

Another interesting statue, the work of Bruce Haskell, Cincinnati sculptor, stands west of McQueary Hall. It depicts not only the pioneer educator who taught at Miami 1856-1866, but also three students who are absorbed in Lesson I.

In the Herstand Hall gallery you can see during the course of a year a number of art exhibits. At times a part of the University’s collection are on view; at other times there are traveling shows, student shows, work of faculty members. It is always interesting to drop in to see what is currently being exhibited.

On the first floor of Harrison Hall handsomely displayed is a fine collection of archeological treasures, many of them the gift of a Miami alumnus, James A. Guiler.

A ZOOLOGICAL MUSEUM may be found at the far end of the main floor, north wing, of Upham Hall. In addition to the specimens behind glass there are always live attractions in this museum which has many visitors other than those majoring in a related science.

Glimmering minerals in the museum in Bruce Hall catch the eye of every visitor and make many a student wish that he had known earlier what geology is concerned with. Typical minerals and fossils from Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana are to be seen, as well as some highly prized objects such as a stone meteorite, valuable because of its rarity.

The M-Book tour of university conference on page 35 in the meantime you’ll want to stop by at the Center.
The Center

To provide services and facilities to fulfill the needs of the campus community, this is the principal purpose of the University Center, which begins its sixth year of operation in September.

Its accommodations are intended to supplement and complement Miami's basic educational goals, and you will find many social, cultural and recreational events taking place there.

Among the Center's facilities are a gymnasium, ballrooms, music listening room, bowling room and numerous lounges. There are meeting rooms for student organizations, a branch post office and a bookstore.

The Center's food services vary from a snack bar and cafeteria on the ground floor to the formal dining rooms, where most popular meal is in the Monday evening buffet. A catering service is available to campus groups meeting in the Center for coffee hours, luncheons, teas and dinners.

On the second floor of the west wing are the offices of the student publications, the YW and YW, of Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity, and Program Board.

Program Board is the student group which develops and promotes many of the cultural and recreational activities within the Center. Its work is directed by a member of the staff and grows in variety each year.

Because of its popularity the center has already outgrown its building, and a new million-dollar east wing is scheduled to be ready for use in September 1966. It will add 26,000 square feet to the present floor space, and will almost triple food service and public events facilities. The wing will contain a cafeteria seating 300, a new Baghdad Room, a private dining room, and a terrace banquet-ballroom seating 300.

A Growing Tradition

Miami University Center

Is ready to welcome the class of '66
As odd summer white house at the corner of Spring and 3rd streets houses the McGuffey Museum. The house, built about 1830 by the man who was to become famous from the series of readers widely used in the public schools of the Middle West (more than 21 million copies were sold), has recently been restored.

It houses the most complete collection of McGuffey readers, and probably the largest one, and has an exhibit of a desk-table used by Professor McGuffey. Each of the eight sides of the revolving desk has a drawer, said to have been a filing system for materials being compiled for his readers.

Something of quite another kind to see will demand a little walking, but you’ll be rewarded.

On East Campus north of Synnott are the Formal Gardens, five gardens of different size and shape, each with its spring, summer, or autumn specialty. Even if you “couldn’t care less” than about gardens, you’ll find that your family and guests will be glad you have taken them there.

In the garden at the north a plaque on a boulder will tell you another bit of Miami history—zealously the first President of Miami University, Robert H. Bishop, and his wife are buried.

Getting acquainted with Miami cannot be done in a day or two weeks; there are many Miami opportunities especially for you. For example:

Atmospheric of many kinds are on the calendar each year. Your ID card is your ticket of admission for these in the Artists Series, almost all others are free.

The Artists Series has brought Marion Anderson, Roberta Peters, Jochei Halffter, Glenn Gould, Fidelito Larrwell, Fred Waring, and others of similar fame in past years. The Cin-matti Symphony Orchestra plays annually.

There are dozens of other musical events to satisfy all tastes.

A Lecture Series brings a number of good speakers to the campus each year. Many others come under the auspices of academic departments, still others are the representatives of a wide variety of organizations.

A new lecture series began last year as the result of the gift of an alumnus, W. A. Hammond, for the purpose of presenting the American Tradition. Initial speaker in this series was Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Announcement of musical events and of lectures appears on posters and in The Miami Student in time for students to plan to take advantage of such opportunities as come only once—a college campus where giving the student fine things is carefully planned.

Theatre-going is always popular. In addition to M.C.T. offerings (see page 44), and the All-Campus Musical (page 41), there is opera presented annually as a cooperative effort with music and drama faculty members directing.

It was new to the custom to bring the student body together three times a year for an all-University convocation. The first one in the fall of 1949 presented the then Senator John F. Kennedy. In 1950 the campus paid hommage to its first Olympic Gold Medal winner, William D. Mullican. Last year President Millert spoke to the upperclassmen, after having met the new students on the first Serials they were here.

The second convocation marks the chartering of the University on February 17, 1889, and brings a speaker of note.

The third is an honors convocation in May, with the spotlight on the achievements of students in the past year.
It's something that you've been looking forward to for months—even for years: the time when you would become a college student. And the time has come, or will come when suddenly it's September and you and your possessions are in Oxford and your freshman year is beginning.

You'll manage in this new situation, of course, but you might like to know that others find the combination of new names, new faces, the 400 acres of campus and more than seventy buildings, exu's schedules and roommates just as bewildering as you do.

Adjustment will be a used that you will beat often-adjustment to classes often very different from those in high school, to life in a residence hall, and to life with a roommate. But with a little effort on your part you'll master these problems and be a full-fledged and knowledgeable Brunner in a short time.

To help you know the ropes just a little sooner, the Mub reports in this section on some areas that aren't written about elsewhere.

HALL LIFE

Residence hall life is directed by members of the staff of the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women. The head resident in each hall is a freshman adviser, and in some of the larger halls there is also an assistant freshman adviser.

Each hall organizes its own unit of government early in the year. The freshman adviser in the women's halls is assisted by a number of counselors, a house chairman, assistant house chairman, and a house counsel.

Counselors are sophomore women who assist in coordinating hall activities, especially at the beginning of the year. They have been chosen because of their record of the year before: scholastic, in attitude, and in leadership.

Each hall is divided into corridors, with two counselors living in each. They not only introduce freshmen to hall and campus life in the first weeks in the fall, but are ready to assist their counselors in any way they can throughout the year.

The house chairman and assistant house chairman are upperclass women who conduct hall meetings and counselor meetings.

The house council is composed of a representative from each corridor, and a hall president, vice president, and secretary who are elected by the hall residents.

In the freshman men's halls the organization is similar to that in the women's with a house senate the body elected by the residents. Upperclass men who live in the men's halls as assistants to the freshman adviser are known as the resident staff.

All-hall meetings are held in both men's and women's residences when there is business pertaining to the entire hall, or on special occasions.

The halls plan social activities such as exchange dinners, dances, open houses, and falconer teas. All play a part in helping the freshman to find his place for himself in campus life.

Many of the halls have their own dining rooms, while residents of others go to one at a convenient location nearby. Meal times are posted in the halls.

Each hall has facilities to make life more convenient—such as laundry rooms with washing machines, dryers and driving racks, and enjoyable—such as recreation rooms, snack bars, and TV sets tuned to receive WMBU-TV as well as commercial stations.
PRESS FOR WOMEN

When deciding what to bring, freshmen women must remember to be selective for two reasons. First, you are sharing space with a roommate

(something you have probably never done before); and second, Miami dress is "casual" rather than "dressy.

Women wear Shirvanian dresses or cotton skirts and blouses to class during the warm, dry days of fall and again in the spring. Synthetic fabrics, drip dry, wrinkle-shield and no-iron blouses save much precious college time that might be spent standing over a hot ironing board.

Informal attire includes. Bermuda shorts, cotton or corduroy slacks and dresses. These are worn in the residence halls, on picnics, for touch sports, but not in class.

Short shorts are considered entirely inappropriate for any aspect of campus life.

Women switch to bulky sweaters and wool skirts for class wear as the colder weather comes. It is important that you plan your wardrobe so that your sweaters and skirts can be interchanged, thus creating several outfits. Knee socks and elastic tights are always popular as soon as the first snow falls. Beady socks are worn in class during the warmer weather.

While tennis shoes, loafers and flats are worn on campus, shoes, boots or stadium boots are desirable to wear during winter months. A few pairs of heeds should also be included to be worn with dressy clothes.

Several tonic dresses to be worn to teas, Sunday dinner, church, conercets, dressier classes, and to lectures should be included in the closet wardrobe along with a cocktail dress for formal wear. Many women prefer to wear long dresses to the power and formal parties since they will be walking, not riding, in Oxford.

Aside from church-going there are few occasions which require a hat at Miami, and many women choose one which makes the suit in almost every clothing a harmonious costume.

A raincoat or a trench coat plus an umbrella are useful in every season, especially in the Oxford "rainyroom" section.

Boycouts are quite popular in the winter for campus wear. A dress coat will be appropriate for Sunday, but it is not a necessity.

On Miami's campuses, as on every other campus, there are as many right styles as there are individuals.

A simple, neat, easy-to-care-for wardrobe is the best bet for college wear as it is for anywhere else.

One warning: Don't buy too many new clothes. You can always add to your wardrobe right here in Oxford, and then you'll be sure to be comfortably setup with the Miami scene right away.

Moving into a new house.
DRESS FOR MEN

Dress for men should be as simple and neat as it is for women. For the spring and fall months short-sleeved, plaid shirts, especially Madras, and solid-colored shirts are usually worn to classes, with the slip-over style becoming very popular. They are worn with white duck, cotton-wash or cord pants.

For casual wear, such as working on your hall’s Homecoming decorations, Bermuda shorts in Madras, white and solid-color cottons are favorites to be worn with school or fraternity sweatshirts.

During the winter months long-sleeved shirts are donned, mostly in plaids and stripes rather than prints. Button-down dress shirts in pinstripes and solids are also worn to class.

Fisher Hall, left, now houses theatre activities, but for many years it was a residence for men.

Sweaters, both cardigans and V-necks, are quite popular with the emphasis on solid colors and plaids increasing. Corduroy pants of the plain front style and flannel “trou” are worn to class in winter. Sport belts complete most outfits.

Sports jackets and suits are seldom worn to class by the majority of students, although there is a small minority who prefer them.

Coat and tie are required by the University for dinner during the week and for the mid-day meal on Sunday.

On these occasions dacron blends are as popular in suits as Madras plaids are in sports jackets during the spring and fall months. Navy, grey, green and brown suits are favorite colors, the dark, three-button, natural shoulder style being preferred by many Miami men during the winter. Herringbone, plaids and tweeds will be big this year, although solid-colored suits in all wool fabric will still be the most popular choice.

Plaid sports coats are favorites, but the striped jacket is making a rapid comeback. Navy blazers are both well-liked and practical.

The occasion determines the proper kind of date wear, whether it be casual clothes or a sports coat and slacks. For dances the dark, three-button, natural shoulder suit is preferred; tuxedos are never required. White and solid colors in pastel shades, with blue being the most popular, are the proper colors for dress shirts, although pin-stripes are also worn. Oxford cloth is the most practical fabric with long-point, button-downs and tab collars being the most common collar styles.

Striped, printed and solid-colored ties of average width (neither too wide nor too narrow) in wool and silk are the most popular.
Low cut "tennis" and cordovans are the most common shoe styles although "penny" loafers are coming back this year.

White socks as well as solid-colored dress socks may be worn during the week, but white socks should never be worn with a coat and tie.

Every man must bring a raincoat and a black umbrella or decide to suffer the consequences. The umbrella, once a fad, is now as necessary as a raincoat.

A light-weight cotton jacket will suffice for cool days or evenings. Suburban and top coats are suitable for outdoor wear when the weather turns colder. Nylon ski jackets and plaid or solid-colored wool pull-over jackets are also used on these occasions.

Felt dress hats in olive and grey are often worn. Wool dress hats are worn daily, while straw "fun" hats are popular in the spring and fall.

All new students should remember that several clothing stores in Oxford cater especially to students' needs and can supply a freshman with all campus styles.

Popular spot: the mail boxes.

EXPENSES
There are two ways of paying your first semester fees. You may do it all or in two parts in September. Included with pre-payment materials received at Student Registration from the Registrar's Office are a number of forms. All of these forms are to be completed and mailed with the pre-payment.
Pre-payment is highly recommended as it will save you much time during your first week on campus. But, whichever method you choose, the fees are the same, as listed below:

Rent: $460.00
Board total (may be paid in three installments): $1,450.00

Thus, the total for students living in a residence hall and eating in a University dining hall is $1,725.00 per semester. Add $175 if you are an out-of-state resident.

Other expenses immediately after you come to September include books and supplies which will range from $50 to $75. Most students must also pay for lessons and practice rooms.

Personal expenses will include laundry, residence hall social fee, room accessories, map money and other incidental expenses. Miscellaneous spending might include snacks, cigarettes, coffee, records, movies, magazines and records.

Laundry facilities are available in residence halls and at 24-hour laund-

SOME CAMPUS SERVICES

Health:
Miami has long provided excellent facilities for the maintenance of a healthy student body, and has added to them this year with the addition of a central wing at the conveniently located building on Spring Street.

Wade MacMillan Hospital provides clinical care and hospitalization for ailments ranging from the common cold to a case of the mumps.

The Health Service has bed facilities for 90 patients. One of its staff of doctors is always on 24-hour call and present during the clinic hours, 8:30 to 11:30 A.M. and 1:30 to 4:30 P.M., weekdays and 9:00 to 12:00 P.M. on Saturdays.

If a student is too ill to attend class, a Hospital excuse is necessary for an excused absence.

Counseling:
The Student Counseling Service, which will move to Warfield in the fall, provides experienced advisors who are qualified to administer and interpret aptitude and personality tests. With the help of the results, these counselors will guide you in solving your problems, both scholastic and personal.

The Service keeps on file a big collection of material on vocations, and members of the staff are always available to discuss this subject with students.

Speech Clinic:
Remedial diagnosis and aid to students with speech or hearing defects are given by this clinic, under the direction of the Speech Department and in cooperation with the University Health Service and Student Counseling Service.

The Office of Student Aid will help to obtain jobs for those students needing and desiring work while in school.

Campus Security:

Round the clock the men on the Security staff keep an eye on the residence halls and the campus generally. You will find your lost articles in the office in Bonhau House. There you will probably find your missing bicycle, too. And should you need an emergency ride to the University Hospital, the Security staff can even take care of that.

Security adds in making this campus a safe, well-regulated community.

LEISURE TIME

In the first few weeks you may decide that there is no such thing as "leisure time," but as you settle into campus routine you'll find that life at Miami isn't all work.

Some of the leisure you'll have to use in going about your own business, such as making checks or laundry (if you aren't a do-it-yourself person, or if you don't keep in touch with home via a laundry box), and necessities for room and wardrobe. Oxford is a small town, but you'll find movies, restaurants, and so on; just look through M-Book.

On the campus you'll find much to do in your leisure time. For instance there are all the sports events and no admission charge; just your ID card.

Then there's the University Center. Here students may bowl, play cards, billiards, or pool, use the Music Listening Room and Browsing Room for relaxation, see some of the best recent movies on Sunday evenings, or go down to the Rev for coffee or a coke. The University Natatorium is open several times a week for swimming.

University band, orchestra, and glee club concerts throughout the year also add to the cultural portion of Miami's program of entertainment. Art exhibits of many kinds are on view at Hiestand Hall and in the University Center. There are interesting museums on the campus, especially the McGaffey Museum.

Theater and the programs of the Arts Series (mentioned elsewhere), social affairs in the halls, church groups and fraternities and sororities, meetings of departmental clubs, trips spent on campuses and in an activity or two, perhaps a dance or two, and all are for you.

In fact, you'll have to organize your leisure time as well as your working hours.

SOME SPECIAL DAYS

The two special days in the fall are Dads' Day and Homecoming, each on a Saturday when there’s a home football game.

Dad’s Day is really a family day at Miami, even if Dad is the honored one. Your hall will plan a party of some kind and there will be an open house at the Center, so that the Dads can meet some members of the faculty and staff.

Esther’s men on the varsity football squad are honored especially on Dad’s Day, and a student committee chooses a faculty member as the Dad of the Year.

Homecoming is the biggest of the fall events, and one that has come to have many traditions. One of them is the bonfire that the freshmen men prepare for the pep rally Friday evening before the game. The giant fire burns on Cook Field following a parade led by the Marching Band.

Your hall may compete in a contest for the best-decorated hall—and even if the decorations aren’t prize-winning, you will have had opportunity to get better acquainted with more of your classmates as you work together. The day ends with the first of the “big” dances of the year at which the Homecoming King and Queen who have been crowned at the game are the guests of honor.

Alumni come from all over the country to spend a few hours at Miami each fall and all students take part in making their Homecoming memorable.

In the spring months are entertained on a May weekend. There is a Miami University Theatre play for their enjoyment and on Saturday an inter-fraternity sing. Parties are on the schedule at each meal—and after that good time everybody settles down to get ready for finals.

OXFORD—HOME OF OHIO’S LARGEST DRY CLEANER

Capitol Dry Cleaning

TO THE CLASS OF ’60
Capital has been serving Miami students since 1934. There will be a Capitol representative in your dorm to offer you the finest in dry cleaning, quality and prices.
The University is made up of a number of academic divisions. In one of them you are a student, working for a degree which will be awarded upon the successful completion of a certain curriculum.

The College of Arts and Science is the oldest of the divisions. In 1922 training for teachers was begun; it is now the School of Education. A School of Business Administration was added in 1927 and the School of Fine Arts in 1929. Graduate study was co-ordinated into the Graduate School in 1929.

Most recent division is the School of Applied Science, organized in 1951. It as yet does not have a Dean as its chief administrative official, but its activities are directed by a committee.

Each of the academic divisions has a published Announcement. You should have the one of the division in which you are studying.

THE COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCE

This is the University's liberal arts college. It offers two degrees, the Bachelor of Arts and the Bachelor of Science. Its fields of concentration begin with "aesthetics" and end with "zoology." These fields prepare for admission to professional schools (such as law, medicine, engineering, theology), lay the foundation for graduate study (in chemistry, history, English, etc.), and lead to a number of careers.

The office of the Dean of the College is in Upshur Hall, just south of the arch. The College, like the other divisions, has a Placement Bureau—but you won't need to be getting acquainted with its director for some time.

No matter what division you are enrolled in, you will find that you are taking some Arts and Science courses, since English, history, mathematics, and the sciences are taught in this division. It is also possible for students enrolled in the College to elect certain courses in the other schools.

Although the primary purpose of the College is to provide for a well-balanced liberal education, encouragement is given, especially in the junior and senior years, for a chosen career.

THE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

If you are enrolled in this division, you are planning to become a teacher, or, at some later time, a school administrator, and you are working toward a Bachelor of Science in Education degree.

Your program will be in elementary education, in secondary education, in one of the practical arts fields, or you may be following the curriculum in speech and hearing therapy.

In the practical arts area are curricula in art education, business (for teachers of business subjects in high school), home economics, industrial arts, and physical and health education for both men and women. Industrial Arts occupies the west section of Gaskill Hall, the men in physical education do much of their work at Witherow Court and the women in that field at Herron Hall.

In the south wing of McGuffey Hall is the William Holmes McGuffey Elementary School, a laboratory school.

You will find the office of the Dean of your school in McGuffey Hall, where many of your classes will be held. Another office that you will come to know is there—the Bureau of Recommendations, through which you will probably find your first teaching position.
THE SCHOOL OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Most of the activities of this division take place in Laws Hall located just east of the Administration Building. It is the School with a preponderance of men in its classes—except in secretarial studies.

No matter what division you are in, if you elect a course in economics, you'll have a Business Administration course.

The degrees of the School are Bachelor of Science in Business and Bachelor of Science in Secretarial Studies.

Specialization may be in accounting, business-economics, finance and banking, general business, industrial management, marketing and merchandising, or in secretarial studies.

The School maintains a Bureau of Business Research and publishes Miami Business Review.

The Dean's office is, of course, in Laws Hall, and on the first floor there one finds the Bureau of Business Placement. Department clubs in the School are closely related to business fields, with their programs similarly related. A number of professional and honorary organizations in the business field have established chapters in the School.

THE SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS

This is a broadly professional school offering work in three departments: architecture, art, and music. Students from the other academic divisions are accepted in courses for which they are qualified in art and music, and especially in applied music.

The department of architecture offers professional training in architecture, with its five-year curriculum leading to a Bachelor of Architecture degree. A limited number of freshmen are permitted each year to begin study.

The department of art offers courses in painting, design, and graphic arts leading to the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree.

Students in music major in applied music (piano, organ, brass, strings, woodwinds, voice), in music education, or in theory. Graduates receive a Bachelor of Music degree.

Architecture and art have classrooms and studios in Heswand Hall, where art education of the School of Education also is housed. The music department occupies Benton Hall and has practice rooms for those studying piano and instruments in Hopichten Hall.

THE SCHOOL OF APPLIED SCIENCE

Enrolled in the newest of Miami's schools are those who are majoring in business economics (dietetics, food management, applied art, consumer services, retailing), industrial technology and paper technology.

The degree granted by the School is Bachelor of Science in Applied Science. Like those in all other divisions, students in Applied Science have the same liberal background which Miami's Common Curriculum gives.

The School has no one building which it calls home. Home economics work is given in the home economics department in McGaffey Hall. Industrial technology has laboratories in Gaskill Hall. Paper technology courses are given in the Robertson Laboratory just east of Hughes Hall.

There are small classes and large, lecture, discussions, laboratories, field trips; yet, when the work of each student is summed up, it is as individual a matter as is depicted here: concentration, long hours, a zest for learning, accomplishment.
THE GRADUATE SCHOOL

Graduate work is offered in many fields, and during your first year you will meet graduate students, some of whom are graduate assistants in the departments in which they are also studying for a master's degree, or in some cases, working toward a doctorate.

The master's degree program at Miami lead to Master of Arts, of Science, of Education, of Business Administration, of Fine Arts, of Music, of City Design, or Master of Arts in Teaching. The Graduate School office is in the Administration Building.

ABOUT 'HONORS'

If during summer registration you did not learn of the Honors Program, you may wish to consider its possibilities when you come to the campus in September. The program, which will be beginning its third year, provides an opportunity for the student of high academic ability and seriousness of purpose to enroll in courses and seminars that are more challenging than the regular courses.

Courses, seminars and colloquia that are a part of the program have limited enrollment, and special study facilities are provided for those in the program.

An entering freshman must be in the top ten per cent of the class to be considered for admission to the program. To remain in it, one must make a 3.4 cumulative average. These students will receive their degrees with General Honors.

In many departments one may work for honors in a particular subject and at graduation have an added bit of laurel listed on his diploma.

Any student, whether he is in the Honors Program or not, may be graduated with distinction if his cumulative average is 3.3 (tenua cum laude), 3.8 (magna cum laude), or 4.0 (summa cum laude).
A NEW AND EXCITING PROGRAM

To begin in September in the College of Arts and Science is a program in international studies leading to the A.B. degree. It is planned for those whose hopes or dreams may take them abroad for a part of their careers, perhaps in government, business, religion, journalism or other endeavor. While it will prepare for service abroad, it will not in any sense be a professional course.

It will be an excellent foundation for graduate study in one of the specialized programs of international relations and area studies, as well as in the conventional graduate fields of anthropology, economics, geography, history, language, political science or sociology. It will be excellent background for the study of law and will be basic for those expecting to take the Foreign Service examination.

Requirements for the A.B. degree in International Studies are available on a single sheet announcement of the College, but as yet do not appear in any of the University publications.

COMMON CURRICULUM

At Miami, every student regardless of his special interest, must complete 36 credit hours in what is known as the Common Curriculum. At the time of registration you will receive a booklet telling about the Curriculum and listing the courses from which you will make your choice.

This booklet will serve as a text in your English Composition class and must be brought back to the campus. An additional copy is not available.

Only one course is required: English Composition and Literature. Two are chosen from a number of social sciences, one from physical sciences and one from a group of humanities sources. The Common Curriculum requirement is usually met during the student's first two years at Miami.
NAVY RESERVE OFFICERS
TRAINING CORPS

Miami is one of 51 universities which has a Naval ROTC unit. Members are of two types: Regular and Contract. Regulars are selected by national competitive examination in December; thus all Regulars have been chosen for 1961-62. Applications for admission to the Contract program may be made to the Commanding Officer of the unit at summer registration or in September.

Any freshman may take the examination for the Regular program next December. It is given on the campus.

Regulars are appointed Midshipmen and receive fees, books, uniforms, and retainers pay from the Navy. After graduation they are obligated to serve four years. Contract students serve two. As students, they receive Naval Science texts, uniforms, and during the junior and senior years a monthly allowance. Both types receive commissions.

Cadets is the social and professional organization of the unit. It is open to all in the ROTC unit.

THE AIR FORCE ROTC

Admission to the Air Force unit may be obtained in September of the freshman year. After completing the basic two-year program a man must pass a qualifying examination and a military physical examination before being accepted for the advanced program.

Successful completion of this program leads to a commission as a second lieutenant in the Air Force. Those in the pilot and observer program serve four years after the completion of flight training. Those who have trained for general services serve three years.

The Arnold Air Society is the social organization of the unit. An auxiliary of the Society is Angel Flight, a group of junior and senior women chosen by the members to serve as hostesses at military functions and to perform similar duties. In the fall semester Angel Flight has 12 members and in the spring twice that number.

SOME GENERAL ACADEMIC INFORMATION

When you come to the campus in September you will receive a booklet entitled "Undergraduate Academic Regulations." It will give you in detail information on grades and scholarship standards, class attendance, academic advising, withdrawal, and graduation requirements.

But in the meantime you'd like to know that:

Classes meet between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 8 a.m. until 12 noon on Saturday. A few classes are scheduled for other hours. Classes start promptly on the hour and end at ten minutes before the hour.

There is no "cut" rule, since every student is expected to attend every class session for which he is registered. If illness prevents attendance at class, a hospital excuse should be obtained. Students will find their teachers understanding and helpful when they are absent because of illness.

As a freshman, you will receive grades at the end of the first five weeks of the first semester. All students will receive mid-semester (nine weeks) grades and grades for each semester.

Miami grades are on a 4.0 point system, with "A" representing 4.0, "B" is 3.0, "C" is 2.0, and "D" is 1.0. For each "A" grade, the student receives 4 credit points for each credit hour of the course considered, for each "B" he receives 3, etc. There are no credit points for an "E" grade, which represents a condition, or an "F" grade, a failure.

The specific grade point average that the freshman and upperclass student must achieve are set forth clearly in Undergraduate Academic Regulations. If you have questions concerning them, your Freshman Advisor will be glad to explain. A 2.0 cumulative average is the graduation requirement.

Four members of the freshman class, elected by the class, are the officers who coordinate and lead class activities each year.

The four who are known as the Freshman Cabinet automatically become members of the Student Senate after the election. They work with the officers which the freshman halls elect to plan their projects which include mixers, the Red Cap Revue, and other activities.

Elections are held shortly after the five weeks grades have been issued.

To be eligible to be a candidate for Freshman Cabinet, a student must have had a 2.0 average at five weeks.

A petition signed by thirty-five class members is necessary also to get one's name on the ballot.

In the days of campaigning the campus becomes a maze of posters and banners, with some students getting out as early as 4 in the morning to grab the best locations for their publicity materials.

As a student at Miami you will want to know something of the government of this rather complex organization. In the paragraphs that follow, are brief descriptions of some of the governing groups whose names you will often hear.

Miami University, a state-supported institution, is a corporation designated as "The president and the Board of Trustees." The Board consists of twelve-to-seventeen members, nine appointed every three years by the Governor of the State of Ohio and confirmed by the Senate. The term of office is nine years.

The Student Senate is composed of the members of the University faculty. It is the legislative body of the University in matters involving educational programs, requirements, and standards; faculty welfare, and student conduct.

The University Senate is composed of the members of the University faculty. It is the legislative body of the University in matters involving educational programs, requirements, and standards; faculty welfare, and student conduct.

The Council on Student Affairs, whose membership is composed of elected students representing various agencies of student government and of members of the faculty and administration, is presided over by the President of the University. It serves as a forum for the consideration of matters of joint interest between student groups and administrative officials.

Concepted with conduct rules of the University are the Men's Disciplinary Board and the Women's Disciplinary Board. Their functions are explained in a booklet which you will receive in September.

Women students at Miami are automatically members of Associated Women Student, whose publication For Women Only sets forth the activities of Miami women and the rules which pertain to them and to the women's residence halls.
RULES AND REGULATIONS

It's no surprise to hear "rules and regulations" in connection with life at a university campus. To make those which pertain to every Miami student very clear, the University publishes a booklet concerned with academic matters and conduct. You will receive your copy in September when you come to the campus.

Regulations that apply particularly to Miami women appear in a publication, For Women Only, a handbook distributed during summer registration.

Freshmen men learn some of the facts of residence hall life through Sinc.

About alcoholic beverages:

Concerning the use of alcoholic beverages, the Student Conduct Regulations state: "The University disapproves the use of alcoholic beverages by students because for educational, physical, and financial reasons the use of alcoholic beverages is detrimental to their best interests.

"Drunkenness, the appearance of being under the influence of an alcoholic beverage, noisy drinking parties, damage to property as a result of drinking, any drinking in public rooms or public places on the campus, and serving of alcoholic beverages at University-approved dances and other University-approved activities are prohibited. Any student or group violating this rule shall be subject to disciplinary action and may be suspended from the University."

Concerning motor vehicles:

The University’s motor vehicle regulations appear in a folder which the Division of Security issues each year. It is important that you be informed on current rules. The basic regulation is this:

“IT IS POSITIVELY FORBIDDEN FOR ANY STUDENT WHILE ENROLLED AT MIAMI UNIVERSITY TO HAVE OR DRIVE A MOTOR VEHICLE (INCLUDING ANY AND ALL TWO-WHEELED MOTOR VEHICLES) WITHOUT PERMISSION. THIS, OF COURSE, DOES NOT APPLY TO THE USE OF ONE IN THE HOME COMMUNITY OF A STUDENT NOT AN OXFORD RESIDENT.”

Permits are issued only by the Division of Security, Boothman House.

The motor vehicle regulation goes into effect on Sunday of New Student Week and continues in force through Commencement Day the following June.
Many Miami buildings have family names — those of the University's Presidents, well-known alumni, members of the faculty, members of the Board of Trustees, and of men prominent in early Ohio library who had some close relationship with Miami. For example, the name Bishop — that of the University's first President, Dr. Robert Hamilton Bishop — and McBride, named for James McBride, member of the Board of Trustees, 1851-1856, and chairman of the committee empowered to build the halls now Elliott and Stoddard "plain and strong." Joel Collins was an Indian fighter and surveyor in early Ohio. Wainew Dean, an alumnus, was a Civil War correspondent, later the editor of the New York Tribune, and L. S. ambassador to Great Britain. Hepburn Hall, ironically, has the name of the faculty member who most violently opposed co-education.

THE MAIN CAMPUS

On the Main Campus, in addition to the Administration Building, are fifteen academic buildings. Harrwace Hall (the original Harrwace Hall was the University's first building) bears the name of Benjamin Harrison, graduate in 1852, twenty-third President of the United States. It houses several Arts and Science departments and the Scripps Foundation for Research in Population Problems.

Bouman Hall, which houses the Department of Music, has an auditorium seating 200.

Loomis Hall houses the departments of the School of Business Administration. It is named for one of the University's most unusual graduates, Dr. Samuel Spahr Loomis, class of 1896 — minister, educator, businessman.

McGuffey Hall takes its name from the famous author of the Readers who began their compilation while a member of the Miami faculty. The building houses the School of Education and the William Holmes McGuffey elementary laboratory school.

Rowan Hall honors the first student from Miami to attend the United States Naval Academy, Admiral Stephen Clegg Rowan. The Building is a Naval Science Armory, housing activities of the ROTC unit.

Brice Hall is devoted to geology and Hughes to chemistry. Both have names of alumni — Senator Calvin S. Rives, class of 1865, and Raymond M. Hughes, '91, the latter the University's president, 1911-12.

Cassell houses the classrooms and laboratories of Industrial Technology and Industrial Arts Education and the studios of the Audio-Visual Service.

Irvin and Upham halls are used by several Arts and Science departments. Upham Hall was named for Alfred H. Upham, '97, president of the University, 1908-41.
The octagonal table-desk in whose drawer materials for the language McGuffey readers were filed stays by William Holmes McGuffey. The secretory in the background was also a family possession to be seen in the museum at the corner of Spring and Oak.

Just east of Hughes Hall & Robinson Laboratories, which is devoted to Miami's particular in pulp and paper technology. Guller Hall, named for James A. Guller, professor of physics 1922-25, houses the departments of physics, mathematics, and astronomy.

Hopburn Hall now serves as a music practice building and the former Herron Hall (whose name continues in a new building on South Campus) will be used for the men's intramural program in 1962-63.

The Alumni Library is the fifteenth of the academic buildings on the oldest section of the campus. Also on the Main Campus are four of the older residence halls: Bishop for women, and Elliott, Noddard and Ogden for men. Elliott is the oldest Miami building; it was built in 1908-25. Ogden Hall was a memorial gift.

Of particular interest to many visitors is the campus near the Administration Building. It was the gift of Beta Theta Pi fraternity on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of its founding at Miami, first of the Miami Triad. A tablet on Elliott Hall marks the room in which Phi Delta Theta was founded in 1849. Plaques in the corridors of Herron Hall were originally installed in the older building of the same name to mark the founding of Beta Theta Pi, Sigma Chi, Delta Zeta and Phi Kappa Tau.

NORTH CAMPUS

On High Street opposite the Main Campus are Lewis Place, home of Miami University President, and Simpson Guest House, the latter the gift of an alumnus, the late John R. Simpson, '30, and of Mrs. Simpson. Two faculty residences face on Bishop Street.

Student residences are Tellows, Swing, Brandon and McKorkle halls, and McCrady House.

Academic buildings are the men's gymnastics, Withrow Court, a temporary theater building, and Billings Natatorium. The Natatorium bears the name of John Show Billings, M.D., class of 1883. An Assembly Hall is planned for the future on this section of the campus.

EAST CAMPUS

Fisher Hall, presently the home of Miami University Theatre, was built 1902-06 as the first home of Oxford Female College.

Student residences are Stynnes, Reed, Guller, Dominick, McDermid, The Pines, and Dorey Hall, the last new in 1960-61. Cook Place is the house of the President of the University.

Service buildings on East Campus are East Dining Hall, Women's Center and Stores, groundskeeper, and a stable.

SOUTH CAMPUS

The University Center and the Sequestrum Chapel are of particular interest to visitors. The latter was the gift of alumni, students and their parents, and friends of the University in Miami’s 140th year.

Until recently, South Campus was largely a women’s residence area. Now Bonham House (speech clinic, offices of Campus Security), Reavis Cottage (home economics), the Radio-TV Building, Hiestand Hall (architects, art and art education), and Heron Hall (women’s physical education) make it an academic area also.

Residence halls on South Campus are Wells and Logan, the first facing Spring Street and the second reached by a driveway from that street; Hamilton, Richard, Porter and Andersons, with service entrances from Oak Street; MacCracken, reached from a one-way west-to-east drive across the campus, and Scott Dodson, and Stanton, served from Maple Street.

Under construction is Minnow Hall.

Four apartment buildings for married students provide for 400 families.

Wadsworth Hospital, facing on Spring Street, houses the Student Health Service. Harris Dining Hall has four dining rooms providing for residents of the four halls nearby.

Under construction is Wadsworth Hall which will house a number of student services.

The Miami University Sesquicentennial Chapel is a non-denominational chapel for the use of any student group that does not have adequate facilities of its own or that may wish to use it for special occasions or ceremonies. It has seating for 120, an organ and a room for informal meetings. It was built from contributions of students, alumni and friends and completed in the Sesquicentennial year of the University.

Although open to any student who may wish to find the proper surroundings for meditation or worship by himself, several religious groups use it regularly for their services. It stands singularly as a representative of the importance of religion in every student's life and the freedom with which he may practice it.

In the building a small meditation room is a memorial to Roger Series, a member of the Class of 1910. It was the gift of fraternity brothers, family and friends.

The chimes in the Chapel were a gift to the University from Delta Zeta sorority which was founded at Miami.

On Sunday mornings, Short Walk and High Street are crowded with students going to or returning from services in Oxford churches. The large congregations testify to the significance of religion in the Miami student's life.

The co-operating group supporting the religious organizations on campus is appropriately known as the Seabury Religious Council. It is made up of representatives from the larger organizations, plus a representative of the SMC. This Council has a schedule of activities and projects, such as aiding in promoting the Religious Emphasis Program. This program each year brings speakers from each of the three major faiths in the United States who presented a series of talks concerning interfaith relationships.

Stated purposes of the SRC are to encourage and facilitate voluntary, co-operation and participation among the organizations represented on the Council, to foster religious thought and action; to create better inter-religious fellowship, co-operation and understanding; and to promote projects in the fields of religious and social action.

It seeks to carry out these goals through such practical activities as aiding in mailing out the religious affiliation preference cards to the freshmen for the use of the religious organizations.

During New Student Week the Council sponsors a Church Night, at which time one learns of the program of the group of his preference.

Directing the activities of SRC is a member of the staff of the Director of Student Affairs whose title is Co-ordinator of Religious Activities. He is also liaison person between the University and those directing activities of the church foundations or the student clubs in local churches.

Another person deeply interested in student religious life is the Director of the Sesquicentennial Chapel.

Religious Activities on the Campus and in Oxford

Many students choose courses in the Department of Religion of the College of Arts and Science as electives, even if their major is far removed from this subject. These courses began with one in the humanities group of the Common Curriculum. Included also are survey courses of both the Old Testament and the New Testament, one in comparative religion, one in the literature of the Bible, and one in Biblical archaeology—to show how wide the range of subject matter is.
ITIONS, CLUBS, FELLOWSHIPS

There are ample opportunities for the new student to become a part of a denominational group, so that he may grow spiritually as well as intellectually while he is at Miami.

These organizations are called by a variety of names; some are known in foundations, others are fellowships, and others are clubs. The programs are varied, fitting the needs and desires of the membership. Several of the larger groups have permanent meeting places. In these organizations a new student will find friends whose interests are similar to his, as well as opportunity to be an active part of a group whose work will carry far into the future.

The Allen Foundation seeks to gain commitment to the church and to its leadership. The group which meets at the Bethel A.M.E. Church provides a program of recreation, panels and other discussion groups, and a social program of record parties to supplement church attendance on Sunday morning.

The Baptist Student Union tries to direct students into church-related vocations and Christian leadership through a program of Tuesday night Bible study and Thursday afternoon devotional activities. It sponsors a retreat in the spring and holds a Focus Week with attention on the evangelical efforts of the Southern Baptist Convention. At the beginning of the school year a Freshmen Fellowship introduces new students to BSM.

The Bethel Hilltop Foundation is the organization for Jewish students. Although regular Friday evening Sabbath services and services for the religious holidays are held in the Sesquicentennial Chapel, there is a house where the members conduct much of the business of the group and meet informally. Bi-weekly dinners with programs such as speakers, movies and discussions are presented throughout the year.

The College Club is the organization of Ephesian students here. During the year these students meet and discuss issues vital to them and have professors speak to them, in addition to planning their own discussion groups on aspects of their faith. Parties and informal gatherings supplement this program.

The Christian Student Organizations meets on Sunday morning and Tuesday evening at the Sesquicentennial Chapel. Monday through Friday it maintains a reading room in the Chapel Assembly room for an hour in the late afternoons.

The Lutheran Student Organization holds weekly meetings and discussion periods which take place at Luther House. With an active social, as well as a cultural calendar during the year, the Lutheran students invite members of any Protestant faith to their meetings. Also there has been much work in connection with their new church here, the Faith Lutheran Church in Oxford.

The Newman Club is the organization of the Roman Catholic students at Miami. The club is a center for activities of Catholic culture and a common meeting ground with other Catholics. Charity service, discussion groups, panel, parties and dinners cooked by the students help fill in the loose annual calendar of events, with the club's headquarters in St. Mary's.

The Student Religious Liberties are a cooperative new group seeking to interest those with liberal attitudes toward religion. The group is a University-Catholic fellowship, but it welcomes others to its meetings. Discussions are held on many subjects -education, politics, science-from the point of view of the religious liberal. The group takes a semi-annual trip to a Lutheran church in Cincinnati to acquaint members with other aspects of the denomination. Informal parties and a spring picnic complete the serious program.

United Christian Fellowship is composed of members of the five Protestant denominations. It is commonly known as UCF. This group holds Sunday morning worship services and has a Bible study group as a project, in addition to discussion on three schools of theological thought within Protestant Christianity. Retreats, parties, and open houses at the UCF house round out their schedule.
Wesley Foundation, whose home is situated adjacent to the Methodist Church, is the Methodist student group. It opens its doors to anyone who cares to enter its activities and operates on a student contribution budget. Charitable projects occupy the time of members and earnings from these go toward a scholarship fund. The Foundation's program includes, in addition to worship and study, drama and debate teams which visit churches in the area to present programs and discussions on such subjects as attending college and vocations. At Wesley students have discussion meetings on many subjects, such as personal problems and questions of faith. Social functions round out the program.

Westminster Foundation, is the Presbyterian group with its headquarters in Westminster House, which has recently added a fellowship hall. Important in its programs is the theme of the application of Christian ethics in various vocations. During the year several professors and local ministers speak to the group, and book reviews are given. Work camps and service projects for children have also been a part of the Foundation program. To make new students feel especially at home, there is a Freshman Club. Social life is provided for with parties and open houses.

YVCA and YWCA are discussed in the section dealing with extra-curricular activities. Please see page 96.

The student who gets the most out of his years on campus is the one who has several interests in addition to his principal role being a student. Two of these interests are discussed in the sections on religious organizations and sports activities; another is the social life that each student must have; still others are referred to as extra-curricular.

It never recommended that freshmen get involved in too many activities, but since the extra-curricular part of college life is important too, MediBook is listing in the pages that follow a variety of the things that make Miami life so interesting.

Many students wait for a semester or an entire year before becoming involved in such activities. However, if you budget your time (hourly, day-by-day only, schedules are important for this), you will soon learn what you can undertake.

Emphasis is given to those for which new students may try out for or for which they are eligible for membership. It is impossible to list every organization.

For example, the departmental clubs are not included. Let's begin with:

YM and YW

The Associations offer opportunity to the freshman to get immediately into an activity that can be rewarding in many ways.

The YM year begins with Freshman Camp, just about the best possible introduction to Miami.

The YM program operates in four areas: one, especially for freshmen, and the others related to religious affairs, campus affairs, and public affairs.

It functions through a cabinet, and to carry on its program has advisory groups—faculty and upperclassmen—and committees.

YMCA carries on a program in two areas—religion and service. Morning meetings held at the Sesquicentennial Chapel were a part of last year's religious program.

In the service program were a seminar on marriage, a panel on dating, and a summer job seminar.

The YW works with the Girl Scout organization in the community too.

Its executive group of students, like the YM, is a cabinet.

Both organizations have pleasant quarters in the University Center.

MIAMI CHEST

Each fall the student body puts on a drive to raise money for a number of worthy projects, such as scholarships for foreign students. Known as the Miami Chest, it is similar to chest drives in many cities in its operation and gives opportunity to new students to be part of a campus-wide activity.

Contributions from the 1961 drive will be used to ferry day students at Miami, to help needy students in non-communist nations, for scholarships to American Indians for higher education and to qualified Negro students, and for assistance to foreign students when they serve in the United States.

PROGRAM BOARD

Working throughout the year are the committees of this Board which plan the many activities of the University Center for the entire student body.

Positions on the Program Board are coveted ones, but there are places on the committees open to freshmen. You might be asked to help plan weekend dances, arrange dancing lesssions or lessons in pool, put on a bridge tournament or coffee hours for students and professors. Chairman of the committee are those who have worked on them and who have shown ability to accept responsibility.

Advertising the Board's activities as posters is the responsibility of the publicity committee. Stunt shows, fashion previews and entertainment, such as presenting the Year Freshmen, are handled by the special events committee. The fine arts committee sponsors lectures, art exhibits, a book fair, and a folk song. The public relations committee sends flyers to all students telling about the Board's activities.

An IBM dance is being planned for next fall by the dance committee which plans and decorates for all Program Board dances. Providing bridge and dancing lessons and arranging a trip to the Kentucky Derby are typical activities of the recreation committee.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

An exchange of ideas between American and foreign students is possible in the relationships formed among members of the Cosmopolitan Club.

With the YMCA and the YWCA, Oe Club last year sponsored a new program with "International Week," which is expected to be continued next year. With its purpose of developing understanding and friendship between American and foreign students, the week's activities touched upon the social, cultural, and intellectual aspects of life in other countries. A foreign student talent show, foreign films, panel discussions with faculty and American and foreign students participating, fraternity dinner discussions with foreign students, and a buffet dinner of exotic foods prepared by various fraternities were included in the week's program.

On next year's agenda foreign students will be dinner guests in residence halls with discussions following dinner.

The Cosmopolitan Club also holds special nights, such as European Night, African Night, Asian Night and Arabian Night with movies, dancing and singing, and refreshments from each nation.

BLOCK M

The freshman is assured of a seat on the 50 card line for every home game with the 330 student members of Miami's organized cheer section, Block M. Membership requires a five dollar deposit that is returned at the end of the football season if the member or his substitute attends every home game.

Block M uses various colored cards to form patterns and designs for the enjoyment of the spectators.

CHEERLEADERS

Action and vitality are characteristics of Miami's energetic cheerleading squad. Whether at an uptown pep rally or at a football game in the rain, the eight numbers of the squad are always on hand to encourage both players and spectators.

There are tryouts for freshman cheerleading positions in the fall and replacements for the varsity squad are selected in the spring.

SHAKERETTES

The swish of the skirts, the rhythm of marching feet, flashes of red and white on the football field are familiar sights to Miami students during half-time. The Shakerettes appear at every home football game and at some of the basketball games.
Shakerettes, a coed group specializing in precision marching and rhythm routines, are selected on the basis of academic achievement, personality, appearance, and skill in dancing. And going along with the excitement and fun are many hours of practice—and no spectators.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

Practical service to the campus is carried on by Alpha Phi Omega, a national organization whose membership is primarily composed of former Boy Scouts. It is active just before each University vacation when the members assist women students in getting their bags to buses. One year the group earned money to purchase benches for the campus, and another year they planted a pine forest on the Bachelor Wildlife Reserve. There is no other campus organization quite like this one.

POLITICAL PARTY CLUBS

It’s Miami tradition to take an interest in politics; in fact, it is one that began early in the Old Miami days, with young Ben Harrison learning some lessons right here in one of the famous literary societies.

Clubs of the leading parties require only sincere interest in and willingness to work for the party. Thus freshmen are quite as eligible as seniors.

The clubs sponsor debates and discussions of world and national problems and of party affairs.

Naturally the aim of the Young Democrats is to create an interest in Democratic politics among students and the aim of the Young Republicans is to carry on a similar program among those whose interest is in that party. Both give practical experience as members participate actively in presenting party leaders to campus audiences.

THE MIAMI STUDENT

Many Miamians enjoy working on the editorial and business staffs of The Miami Student, campus newspaper, the oldest college newspaper west of the Alleghenies. Published every Tuesday and Friday, it reports news of campus and national importance. Each student receives a copy as one of the many things paid for by the activity fee.

Training periods are held in the early fall for prospective reporters. Writing headlines or captions, reading galleys, proof, and covering the bars for news stories are just a few of the jobs you may be trained for. You may choose to work on one of the three staffs (editorial, sports, or business).

Freshmen who show talent and interest can advance to desk editors, a position of more responsibility, in their sophomore year and may if qualified, become copy editors or makeup editors in their junior year.

THE YEAR BOOK

The name of Miami’s yearbook is Reconia, a word which means “looking back.” The purpose of this annual is to capture the highlights and many of the commonplace events of a year that do much to make up your life on campus.

Freshmen may sign up early in the fall at the Reconia office to work on any of the seven staffs on the yearbook (business, copy, photography, advertising, art, sports, and Greek).

In your class are those who will be the editor, business manager, and other top personnel of this book, in both 55 and 56. You could find in it an absorbing—even a professional—interest.
DIMENSIONS
The campus literary magazine encourages exchange of thought between faculty, students, and alumni. You may submit humorous articles, poems, short stories, poetry, book reviews, and photography.
Dianet, published four times during the school year, may be subscribed to or individual copies may be purchased.
Like the other student publications it is on the outlook for talent: writing, editorial, business and advertising, and in art.

M-COOK
It’s in your hands right now and should give you a good idea of the kind of cuisine it is. It is revised each spring to bring it up to date for the new class.

WMUB
If you’ve been thinking about TV or radio, valuable experience may be gained through work on the staffs of the University FM and TV station. This work is exciting, professional. It is directed by faculty members of the Department of Speech in which radio and TV courses are given.
Miami University Broadcasting Service, which operates the station, also publishes a monthly Program Guide for the use of its listeners.
The TV station is one of the pioneers in educational television, and the FM station has a wide circle of listeners in southeast Ohio.
After completion of a training program, students find opportunities to work as record librarians, news writers, and news and sportscasts announcers. All of this becomes much more than an “activity” for those with talent; it becomes an absorbing professional field.

SPEAKERS’ BUREAU
Like to make speeches? Those who wish to improve their abilities in public speaking may do so through the Speakers Bureau which schedules engagements before various types of audiences. The Bureau is a service not only to students who want training in speaking, but also to many organizations seeking programs.
The Bureau is directed by a member of the faculty of the Department of Speech and its office operation is financed by the Alumni Association.

DEBATE TEAM
Oldest of all student activities at Miami is debating; it began in 1842. Questions of national importance are debated at student meetings, and the team competes against teams of other universities. Like many other so-called activities, work in debate can add much to college life.

The musical groups call, at once, for more than interest and a willingness to participate. Talent and, in the case of the bands and orchestras, previous study of an instrument, are the keys that open their doors.

THE UNIVERSITY BANDS

The tryouts early in September give you an opportunity to become an active member of the University Marching Band during your freshman year. The Marching Band performs from the opening football game, with its music and cheerleaders developing from game to game throughout the season. The band also goes to at least two out-of-town games.

After the Thanksgiving vacation, members of the Marching Band may try out for the Symphonic Band. This group gives two campus concerts during the year and goes on a three-day concert tour of several high schools in Ohio.

GLEE CLUB

Men with an interest in choral music are chosen in the fall, through tryouts, to become members of the Men's Glee Club. This group presents several concerts on campus and makes a spring tour around the state. The Glee Club offers participation to freshmen as well as sophomores.

Wearing the emblem of the Glee Club is an honor that seems to grow in importance each year at Miami.

WOMEN'S CHORAL SOCIETY

Tryouts early in the fall determine membership in this organization. A Christmas concert and another in the spring are among the public appearances of the group, which also joins the other choral groups in their appearances with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

Fine Men's Clothing and Furnishings

'The most popular label on the Miami campus'
A CAPPPELLA SINGERS

If you enjoy singing both classical and popular choral arrangements, you may try out for A Cappella Singers eath in the fall. This mixed choral group presents a yearly Christmas concert, hosts high schools in Ohio for three or four days in the spring, and combines with other choral groups in appearances with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

THE UNIVERSITY ORCHESTRA

Talented students in both classical and popular music may become members of the University Orchestra through a series of tryouts. The Orchestra presents several concerts during the year.

There's never an end to referrals (for the instrumental and vocal groups, as there is almost a concert a week and conductors are perfectionists.

M. U. THEATRE

Just because you've never taken part in a play or helped in the fascinating business of production does not mean that some phase of theatre may not be an interesting part of your life at Miami. Just watch for announcements of tryouts and keep from members of M.U.T. about the jobs other than acting.

Four major plays are produced by Miami University Theatre each year. One of these is a Shakespearean play and one is scheduled for the Mother's Day weekend in the spring. You may try out for parts in these plays or may work on any of the stage crews.

In addition to the major plays there are quite a number of lesser productions in which many beginners may have a part.

Students who are interested in drama may become eligible for membership in the M.U.T. group upon the fulfillment of forty-five hours of work on campus productions.

Miami University Theatre is under the direction of the Speech Department, with its many activities centered in Fisher Hall on East Campus. Major plays are given in Benton Hall, but most Miami actors begin to learn the craft of the theatre at Fisher Hall, where an open house is scheduled during the first week of school.

Of course only a limited number can be active in theater work, but it's an area in which every student can be a spectator at very minimal cost—and a most rewarding one.

RED CAP REVUE

A revue as a dramatic production of the freshman class began many years ago in the years when freshmen wore red caps to distinguish them from the upperclassmen. The caps have gone, but Red Cap Revue has stayed. It will be produced in 1962 under the direction of the Campus Shows Committee of the University Senate.

ALL-CAMPUS MUSICAL SHOW

The student-produced All Campus Musical Show is scheduled in the spring of each year. Recently it has been a "musical" musical, with the 1962 production "The King and I." The year before "Guys and Dolls," was shown and in 1959 it was "Pajama Game."

The production is handled through the Campus Shows Committee of the Student Senate.

Directors, performers and all of the technical staff are students. Try-outs for musical and acting parts are held early in the second semester.

Being a part of such an undertaking is not only good experience but good fun. Like other activities at Miami, one's academic standing need not be "in good standing" to permit trying for a part or working on any of the production views.

I is for image

... the current word to describe the impression in the public mind of all kinds of organizations... and that impression many times is made solely by the self-portrait that an organization presents in its printed materials... to give the world an image of quality is really quite simple if you choose those who combine craftsmanship, art and experience in producing fine printing.

IT'S AN HONOR

Not to be confused with activity groups are a number of organizations in which one may earn membership by academic excellence, and others that choose members for combination of campus service, good citizenship and scholarship.

In any case rather far-fetched but it’s quite true that the first week of the first semester is when one begins to make a place for himself in one—or more—of the boundaries.

First academic recognition may be won in the first semester by all who make a 5.5 average. (It's hard, but worth the work!) Men are chosen for Phi Eta Sigma, a national organization, and women for Alpha Lambda Delta, also national.

At the end of the freshman year a few men and women are chosen to assume in freshman halls the next year. This honor and responsibility comes in recognition of many qualities—plus, it goes without saying, good grades.

OWEN is a group of sophomore women, chosen at the end of the first year. NPPR is a similar organization of junior women.

You will soon be hearing, "She's a Mortar Board," or "He belongs to OOK. These are the names of the senior honor societies, whose members are chosen because of campus activity, service and—here it is again—scholarship.

There are many departmental honor groups, some national in scope; there are organizations closely related to certain activities, as Delta Omicron for women in music.

There is a national organization in the field of business administration and one in education—to give other examples.

High academic honor comes in election to Phi Beta Kappa, a part of the American campus since 1776.

At Miami "athletics" means many and varied things—rough, rigorous varsity competition, fighting for an intramural crown, or getting personal enjoyment from a game of tennis, a horseback ride, or a swim.

All students profit by athletics, as two years of physical education are required for graduation. In addition, most men participate through the intramural program sponsored by the department of Physical and Health Education and the women through WIAA, Women's Recreation Association.

Miami has a full intramural program that is carefully planned. From the first football scrimmage in the fall to the last swing of a golf club in the spring there is always some type of activity.

As a member of the strong Mid-American Conference, Miami centers its inter-collegiate program around the six other members of this conference—Bowling Green, Kent State, Marshall, Ohio University, Toledo, and Western Michigan.

However, Mid-American members are not the only schools appearing on Miami's athletic schedules. In football, Big Ten foes or other strong independents are Redskin opponents. In basketball, Miami plays such powerhouses as Cincinnati, Dayton, Xavier, Pittsburgh and Eastern Kentucky.

The crowded trophy case proudly displayed in Withrow Court, headquarters for all men's athletic activities, is tangible proof of Miami's excellent reputation in the sports world.

* * *

Next year for the first time, Miami women will have physical education facilities really their own in the fabulous new building whose generous front doors are pictured above.

Cost of the building is a million and a quarter dollars. Its cubic footage is 1,100,000 plus. In the north wing is a gymnasium and in the south a swimming pool. Space has been provided for bowling alleys.

Wee of Herron Hall there is ample area for outdoor activities.

INTRAMURALS

Realizing that most students like to intersperse their studies with exercise and that informal competition is a good way to meet others, Miami has set up a varied intramural program for the whole year.

The football league is made up of inter-hall and inter-fraternity leagues with championship playoffs at the end of the season. A trophy is awarded for the team which places first in each division. There is no limit to the number of teams a hall or fraternity may field, so rivalry runs high.

Basketball is operated in the same manner during the winter months, as is softball in the spring. The wide range of sports offered is designed to attract the most individuals possible, whether beginners or advanced players.

For those who meet certain standards, the physical education requirements can be met by participating in intramural golf, tennis, swimming, etc. The intramural program provides referees or umpires, as the case may be, and is designed to get you to participating as much as possible.

Most of the competition will be with other freshmen, so you have a good chance of winning. There will be announcements in plenty of time to field a team.

Students interested in participating in this program should watch The Miami Student and the residence hall bulletin boards.

The intramural program will also use the former Herron Hall near the Administration Building next year.
FOOTBALL

Football is the highlight of many a Saturday afternoon in the fall, and who things come close to matching the excitement and pageantry of annual attractions such as Homecoming and Dads’ Day.

Admission to home games is by 10-card for students and by ticket for guests.

In addition to varsity games, there will be extra freshman games. These are not only exciting but very important as they provide much-needed experience for future varsity players.

The freshman squad has the same practice schedule as the varsity.

Students will quickly learn of the stiff competition within the Mid-American Conference and of the strong rivalry between Miami and neighborhood foes such as Dayton, Xavier, and Cincinnati.

* denotes MCG games

On Dads’ Day, the fathers of the Redskin wear their sons’ numbers, see the game from a bench, and are introduced between halves as part of the colorful afternoon program.

BASKETBALL

One of the most thrilling aspects of the Miami athletic scene is when the Redskins’ basketball team comes to life in Withrow Court and the enthusiastic student cheering section creates a thunderous din.

This happens frequently during the winter months as Conference foes and other strong opponents from throughout the country trade baskets with the Redskins.

Students come early to Withrow Court for the preliminary game which pits the Miami freshman team against other college opponents.

WRESTLING

Under the guidance of Jim Fry, Miami has developed a strong wrestling team in recent years. Two years ago, the Redkins walked off with a title. Student interest has developed, too, and enthusiastic crowds have been showing up into Withrow Court for the evening matches.

As is the case in other varsity sports, freshmen are ineligible at Miami. However, tournaments conducted on an intercampus basis provide much talent for Miami’s varsity teams. Such tournaments are conducted late in the fall and freshmen may compete.

BASEBALL

At least twenty baseball games, against Mid-American Conference competition and other top teams from the Midwest, are on the spring sports schedule at Miami each year. Practice begins early indoors, and Coach Woody Willif has his team outside on the diamond as soon as weather permits.

Tryouts for the freshman team are held in the spring, and an abbreviated schedule is arranged for the first-year players.
TENNIS

Miami's varsity tennis team, one of the University's most successful athletic groups, is composed of six men for dual meets, but a constant system of tournaments in the fall and spring enables Coach Al Moore to find readily-improving players ready to move up to the varsity.

GOLF

The nucleus of each year's varsity golf team is chosen each fall during a 36-hole tournament. Additional eliminations are made in the spring when the season begins.

Varsity matches and practice are staged at the Oxford Country Club, a well-kept, nine-hole course west of town. Greens' fee play is permitted for students at the Country Club course, and six golf holes are available for play at the University.

SWIMMING

John Shaw Billings natatorium, site of the 1972 National Collegiate Athletic Association swimming championships, is one of the most impressive features of Miami's athletic facilities.

Miami points with pride to Bill ‘Moeller, 1970 Olympic swimming champion, as one of the finest examples of an excellent swimming program.

Intercollegiate competition is conducted on both the freshman and varsity level.

Until 1962-63 Billings natatorium had been shared with the women's classes and rehearsals for events such as the Merlin Club shows. With their own pool open, the women have freed many hours for additional classes for men, as well as for recreational swimming. In fact, the time has come when every student must pass a test in swimming.

TRACK

Having completed his first fall season as track coach, young Bob Fyske has set up an excellent year-round track program.

Each spring the track team travels to several big relays to compete with some of the nation's strongest track teams. Several dual meets are also scheduled in preparation for the WAC championships.

The freshman track team works out with the varsity, has a few dual meets and gives exhibition runs during the varsity dual meets. Freshmen begin practice for track this fall.

CROSS COUNTRY

This is one of the sports in which Miami athletes have excelled throughout the years. It provides varsity competition in the fall for the track team's distance runners. Occasional dual meets are also scheduled for freshmen.
WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

Because so much space has been given to the men's activities, you women will be thinking that you've been neglected. No, no, you have the same graduation requirement as the men—two years of physical education for a total of four credits. This requirement is usually worked off in the freshman and sophomore years.

Women's sports activities are divided into three seasons, with a wide variety of choice in each one.

During New Student Week you will have a meeting with members of the staff of the physical education department and at that time will sign for a fall activity. And of course you will visit the new Herron Hall, the finest facility of its kind anywhere. It's something that you can call fabulous and be correct.

Information concerning the offerings in the other seasons appears in "W.R.A. Report," a publication of the Women's Recreation Association that freshman women will receive when they come in September. In it you will hear of the cabin which WRA has in a lovely wooded spot several miles off campus—a place for week- ends, outing activities of many kinds, and useful, informal weekends.

WRA-RELATED CLUBS

You'd expect that clubs which are sponsored by the Department of Physical Education for Women would be active ones, calling for skill, as in modern dance or swimming, or genuine interest in becoming a good rider. Here they are:

Orienteering

If your taste in dancing is modern, you will find expression of this interest in Junior Orienteering. After a semester's membership in this group you may audition for Senior Orienteering. The Senior group presents an annual dance production of interpretive dancing.

BICYCLING AT MIAMI

At Miami students will find a beautiful campus which is rapidly expanding. The distance between many of the residence halls and the Oxford business district is about a mile, and, in several instances, the residence halls are more than a mile apart.

As is well known, students have two modes of transportation—by foot and by bicycle. Students have discovered that the answer to the distance problem is the bicycle. Cycling has also become a popular means of recreation, and the beautiful countryside and nearby Huiston Woods State Park are visited on the weekends by many cyclists.

The Sports Center, Oxford's bicycle and sporting goods headquarters, is ready to serve all your cycling needs. We sell, rent, and repair all types of bicycles. Our feature is the famous Raleigh English-built light weight bicycle equipped with three speeds. We also carry Schwinn bicycles. See us for any parts or accessories you may need. The Sports Center is located at 14 South Main Street, in the center of town.

Marlin Club

Another activity for you sports-minded coeds—swimming and participation in the Marlin Club require regular events for the group. Candidates for membership in Marlin are accepted on the basis of their skill in one of four fields: general performance, speed swimming, diving, and synchronized swimming.

The pool in the new Heron Hall will undoubtedly lead to even greater interest in swimming, as the women will have many more pool hours available.

Saddlery

Miami and Western College campus provide a gracious and pleasant setting for Saddler excursions. Handbuck riding along the Tillamook and the annual spring horse show are just a few of the highlights for Saddlers. Your interest and willingness to learn the art of equestrian ship are the main requirements for membership.

Home of the saddlery is at the very core of the campus, where a new stable adds to their enjoyment of an always popular activity.

Miami has long been known as the "Mother of Fraternities" because it is the founding place of five—four men's groups and one women's. Visitors come to the campus almost every day during the summer to see this campus which has become known to them through a fraternity association.

The history of Greeks at Miami began with the coming of a young Hamilton College graduate to Cincinnati in 1853. He met Miami men there and soon he quite informally organized a chapter of his fraternity.

Those whose Alpha chapters are at Miami are Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Chi, and Phi Kappa Tau, and of the women's Greek organizations, Delta Zeta.

FRATERNITIES

There are twenty-one national fraternities which have chapters at Miami: Alpha Delta Phi, Alpha Phi Alpha, Beta Theta Pi, Delta Chi, Delta Epsilon, Delta Phi Epsilon, Lambda Chi Alpha, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Kappa Tau, Pi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Sigma Nu, Tau Kappa Epsilon, Theta Chi and Zeta Beta Tau.

Fraternities play an important role in the social life at Miami. Be it a winter formal or a spring weekend, the Greek social life is busy.

In addition to the social aspect of Greek life, fraternities offer an extensive intramural athletic program and are among the leaders in encouraging academic endeavor.

Freshman men are not pledged until the beginning of the second semester and must have a 2.0 scholastic average at that time. Defected pledges enables the prospective pledge to understand the fraternity system. Rooms and board with a fraternity are generally about the same price as in the halls, and dues per month vary from $50 to $65, depending on the particular group.

"Colke dates" begin soon after the freshman men arrive on campus. This method of informal rush consists of a fraternity member and a new student getting together at one of the campus hangouts and becoming acquainted. This part of rush serves to give the freshman an informal chance to ask questions about the fraternity system.

A close unity among the fraternities and a more vivid awareness of working for everyone have been the goals of Interfraternity Council. This group, composed of the fraternity presidents and a representative from each group, has done much in co-ordinating the fraternities. The Interfraternity Council is co-sponsor of Greek Week in the spring which includes the Ill Ball and various spirited athletic contests.

SORORITIES

After Miami became a coeducational institution it wasn't long until the first sorority was organized. Today there are chapters of seventeen national sororities, or women's fraternities as they are often called.

Each sorority has a suite consisting of a living room and kitchenette, furnished and decorated according to the group's preference. They are in Hamilton, Richard and MacCroom halls.

The Greek organizations at Miami
Acting as co-ordinator of the activities of the sororities is a Panhelmonic Council made up of the presidents of the chapters and one representative of each. This council formulates rushing rules and each spring
-publishes a Handbook which each freshman woman receives. The Handbok attempts to answer questions about rushing and sorority life, as well as giving in minute detail the rules which govern rushing.

The sororities at Miami, in alphe-abetic order, are: Alpha Chi Omega,
Alpha Epsilon Phi, Alpha Omicron
Pi, Alpha Phi, Alpha Sigma Ypsilon,
Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Delta
Gamma, Delta Zeta, Gamma Phi Beta,
Kappa Alpha Theta, Kappa Delta,
Kappa Kappa Gamma, Pi Beta Phi,
Sigma Kappa, Sigma Sigma Sigma, and Zeta Tau Alpha.

Each of the sororities has a social program of its own, but as a group through the Panhellenic Council sponsors the Panhellenic Formal, one of the “big” dances of the year.

Cake dinners, pledge lessons, Saturday morning breakfaasts in the suites, fraternity-sorority parties—all are a part of the activities of every sorority pledge. In addition, she has a certain academic average to make if she is to become an active member of the group.

Costs of membership vary with the individual group, but the average cost during pledging is $45, while $20 is the average cost per semester for an active member.

Daddy Day calls for something for a little special at the front door. In the spring the mothers get a welcome, such as a huge banquet of tissue paper flowers or the rolling out of a red carpet from front door to ide- scaffold.

CAMPUS DICTIONARY

Each college community has a special language of its own, which may be "bongs," "beats" or " depressing" in its current form. So that you won't be discouraged by unfamiliar words and jargon at Miami, below is a basic list of abbreviations and a few campus pronunciations to help you on your way to becoming "very R."

Acne: an "A" grade. Example: "I got an A on my English exam today."

Alpha: a person who has been initiated into a Greek-letter group.

Ad Building: short for the building housing the principal offices of the University, other than those of the academic dean.

Ad nauseam: something displeasing. Example: "My English exam today was bad news."

Booking at the Library: studying at the Library.

Causation: denotes a discipline imposed upon a student for a violation of a residence hall regulation.

Candelight: a ceremony associated with sororities honoring a recently initiated, pinned, or engaged sister.

Centre: short for the University Center (see page 8).

Code date: formal get-together between Greek and residence hall and for the purpose of getting to know one another better.

Cracking a book: studying. Example: "I'm not cracking a book until Sunday night."

Cutt: (two meanings) to skip or miss a class to criticize. Example: "I overheard Horrie cutting his room- mate for having cut a class." "GOING" (pronounced "going") the sophomore women's honor society.

Drug: a "D" grade.

Face Time: time spent socializing in the most frequented places on campus or in Oxford. Example: "Let's pick up some face time at the Rex."
Fling an "F" on an exam or in a course. Example: "Jane flung her book out."
Get up the stick: to get going, shape up, begin now. Example: "If you don't get on the stick, you won't make grades."
Grinidly: rather worn and comfortable clothing, usually consisting of sweatshirts, jeans and jeans. Example: "Wear your grinidly to the Homecoming."
Help Week: a period of pre-initiation activity experienced by Greek pledges before going active.
Hook It: implies walking some place. Example: "Let's hook it over to the Rev."
Hourly: a set in a course requiring the entire class period.
Hulu: the portion of the campus where eight sidewalks intersect, located south of the Ad Building.
Hurtin': when you are in an undesirable situation. Example: "I'm hurtin' in sociology." In translation: "I'm not doing well in sociology."
Late perm: (pronounced perm) permission to a young student to stay out after the usual closing hour.
Letter: the Greek letters of a fraternity attached to a chair, worn as the step before "pinning." Used as a verb. "She's lettered to Tom."
Like: any library, but referring especially to the Alumni Library between Bishop and Irving halls where many fruitful hours can be spent.
Nine Weeks: (two meanings) grades for the first half of a semester; the holidays given preceding the assessment of nine-weeks grades.
Mambo Season: anytime when Miami's campus is deluged by rain.
No news: no trouble or worry. Example: "Getting my paper in on time will be no sweat."
On Paper: to be on academic probation as a result of grades which did not meet Miami's standards. In short, you're hurtin'.
Paddle: short for Panhelletic, a council of representatives from each Miami sorority.
Filing Up the Z's or Shark Out: extra sleep, usually in excess of sleeping done at night. Example: "After my Psychology test, I'll be filing up the Z's."
Promote: the fraternity man who has given his pin to a girl, and the opposite of Proppanion, the girl who wears the pin.
Pinched: a verb referring to the wearing of fraternity pins by girls. You will hear: "She is pinched to Jim," or "He is pinched to Sue," or merely "They are pinned."
Pledge: the student who has taken the first step in Greek organization life. Also a verb, to pledge or to be pledged.
Prof: shortened form of professor.
Quad: short for quadrangle. The area within a rectangle formed by several buildings.
Rest (pronounced as if were Z): shortened form of Redskin or 100 yards distance as the average on High Street and on the field between home and the Marching Band does its part with some of the paper topics.
