FARMER SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

THE FIRST CHOICE FOR Tomorrow's Leaders

Finding the “right” college is about more than just academics. It goes beyond majors and courses.

It's finding the place where you fit, where you feel secure and confident enough to step out of your comfort zone, test your self-imposed boundaries and explore the possibilities. The place you leave upon graduation, but will return to, and remember, because it will always feel like home.

The Farmer School is a place where you will meet people from all over the world who will become lifelong friends, mentors, and supporters all sharing a common goal—your success. You will become a valued part of the Farmer School ecosystem—which includes more than 50,000 alumni, faculty, and staff. It's a family like no other.

Even our building is different. It's a place where students gather. A hub of activity, 24/7, all year round. Not just for classes, but to meet friends and faculty, share a meal from our in-house cafe, work on projects, or listen to someone playing the grand piano in our Forsythe Commons.

LIKE NO OTHER

AN EXPERIENCE THAT GOES Beyond

We do it right, from the start.

The Farmer School advantage starts your first semester here, as you have the opportunity to join any of our more than 40 student organizations and business fraternities—a great way to explore different areas and discover your passion while building relationships with other students, and a network of faculty and alumni mentors eager to support your journey.

You'll be meeting with business leaders (many of whom are alumni!) who speak in your classes and interact with you, often discussing issues their organizations face. Every semester, the Farmer School welcomes hundreds of executives, entrepreneurs, and employers to visit classrooms, meet with clubs and organizations, and participate in our Executive Speaker Series. Many of them are eager to grow their connection to our students throughout their Miami years, and beyond graduation.

And you'll be immersed in our one-of-a-kind First Year Integrated Core—a series of four business courses that set the stage for your success, teaching you invaluable business and life skills, including Critical Thinking, Ethical Thinking / Cultural Intelligence, Communication, Creative Thinking and Computational Thinking, and Coding. Farmer School first year students move through these classes in teams, working together from the beginning of the semester to the end, culminating with a final client project. The integrated core allows students to individually build critical skills and collaboratively work for a real client, all while analyzing real data. Students learn skills, apply knowledge, and present their creative, computational, and analytic findings to senior executives.

"If you told me when I got out of high school that I would be talking in front of 600 people, I wouldn't have believed it. The Core was a really neat experience, and it's great right off the bat to get to talk to real business people. There are seniors at other business schools that don't get those experiences."

"You have the opportunity to redefine this world, this campus and well beyond it. You should have community to help you make sure you can accomplish that in more ways than one. It's really helped me shine. I've also learned that I can do a lot more than I thought I could. Freshman me couldn't think of that, couldn't have imagined that. Being in a business fraternity has taught me about what it means to be Anthony Patrick."

ANTHONY PATRICK '23
Accountancy, Director of Recruitment for Pi Sigma Epsilon

"I didn't expect the professors to be so involved and invested in my learning. When you hear about college, you expect 1,000 students and one professor, but here, it's really like the professors have your best interest in mind and care a lot and are really involved in your academic career."

AN EDUCATION THAT GOES Beyond BOOKS AND LECTURES

Business is hands on. So is the learning experience at the Farmer School.

Every Farmer School student has multiple opportunities over the course of their study to work with actual clients and solve real business issues, providing them with the ability to “practice what we teach.” These experiences are invaluable opportunities for our students to apply the skills they have acquired at the Farmer School and learn to work collaboratively.

Each year, teams of Farmer School students test their skills against students from other colleges in competitions that take them around the country. And, more often than not, our students come home winners. But accolades, trophies, and monetary awards aren’t the most valued prizes—our students are polishing their presentation, teamwork and leadership skills, and doing it in front of the very organizations they hope to work for.

“Miami wasn’t just teaching us the book knowledge, it was giving us the experiences. I remember the projects we did to this day.”

HANDS ON

AND Beyond CAMPUS

In our increasingly global economy, business students need to possess first-hand knowledge of other cultures and become geographically flexible. Recruiters value students with international experience and the ability to communicate across cultures. That's why more than 65% of all Farmer School students study abroad or away as part of their undergraduate education (The national average is 16%), making us one of the Top 3 public universities for signature/international experience participation. And, we have several scholarship opportunities in place, making studyaway and abroad financially accessible to all Farmer School students.

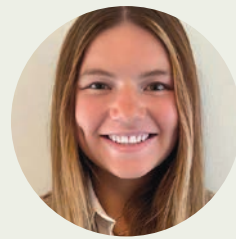

Studying abroad allows you to develop skills to become a leader in the global marketplace, equipping you to work in a culturally diverse business environment. We have programs lasting from two weeks to six months in twenty different countries.

No matter what path you choose, our faculty, advisors, and career counselors will help you explore your potential and develop the qualities and skills necessary to become confident and successful.

"I was challenged in great ways. Studying abroad made me a better person."

ESTHER LADIPO '17
Social Impact Senior Associate, DoorDash

"My study abroad in Italy was one of the greatest experiences that I've had and I'm so grateful for the opportunity. My biggest take away from the trip was learning about Italy's beautiful culture and history. It was so unique to learn about the culture through experiences that I had on a daily basis and through school sightseeing such as walking tours, wine tasting and business visits. After going on this trip it makes me so excited to continue to explore and travel because there is so much out there to learn."

RILEY BALCONI '23

"The semester studying at the Brandery really gave us a jump start on creating a successful launch. The FSB faculty have been there every step of the way helping us find the answers we need to make OROS a success."

MICHAEL MARKESBERY '15
Founder
OROS Apparel

"What sets the Farmer School apart from many programs is that students who graduate from the Farmer School are 'work ready'. The thing the Farmer School does better than any place we recruit is prepare students to be effective, quickly, in a real life environment."

CHRIS GORMAN
Chairman, Chief Executive Officer, and President
KeyCorp

"At Deloitte we continue to increase our number of hires from Miami's Farmer School each year! Great success!"

TONY MORGAN

AND Beyond GRADUATION

Our graduates are a cut above. Capable. Motivated. Creative. Professional. Mature. Our staff of career development advisors focuses on the specific needs of business students and delights in connecting students with internship and full-time employment opportunities.

It starts long before graduation. Résumé workshops, career counseling and mock interviews allow you to find your passion and perfect your pitch. Events like the Spring Career Fair and the Fall Career Fair provide exposure, experience, and tremendous networking opportunities for all students. In addition to these foundational experiences, you can build on relationships with company representatives through formal and informal networking events and informational sessions hosted by corporations and organizations.

No matter what path you choose, our faculty, advisors, and career counselors will help you explore your potential and develop the qualities and skills necessary to become confident, successful, and employed.

When Farmer School students graduate, they already have years of experience working in diverse teams, interacting with and presenting to executives, and solving complex business problems. So much so that employers tell us that hiring a Farmer School graduate is like hiring someone with a master's degree or previous business experience. The transition from classroom to boardroom is seamless.

If you're a high-achiever who's ready to test your limits and journey beyond your comfort zone, you belong at the Farmer School of Business.

Farmer School students don't just get accepted into the business school.

They get hired.

We're a home for those who want more.

More from themselves, more for each other,
more for the world.

Our students hit the ground running with real-world partners, real jobs, real internships, and real hands-on experience—

from first year to first job and beyond.
