Your Family Meeting Record

Your Family Meeting Record is the place to capture your family's Shared Assessment and your Family Care and Support Plan. During your family meeting, the person you designate as the Recorder will use this document to write down your agreements as well as those areas where you can't agree right now or are undecided.

After your family meeting, you may want to make copies of this document and give a copy to each person who participated in your family meeting so they can review and keep it for future reference.

This document is not written in stone and things written here certainly can (and will) change as your situation changes.

We hope that your family will continue to meet and talk about your care and support arrangement. On the OFOW website, you'll find a Sample Agenda for Future Meetings to help you think through changes to your care and support arrangement. You can also print a new set of family meeting materials from the OFOW website and use the full process again.

Part A: Individual Tools Exchange

The purpose of the Individual Tools exchange is to gather and acknowledge each person's view of what's needed, what's happening, what's wanted, and what's possible.

This is an opportunity to share frankly with each other and to be open to hearing from each other. No more guessing, imagining, wondering, or presuming. You'll be able to identify where you see eye-to-eye about what's needed and happening and where there are differences that require more conversation or professional assessment or consultation. As you read each other's Individual Tools, you'll get a better sense of what others are currently doing and how the care and support arrangement affects each of you. When it comes time to think about what's possible, you'll be able to approach the care and support arrangement with each other's abilities, limitations, and preferences in mind.

The Reader will read the instructions for the Individual Tools exchange from pg. 12 of the Family Meeting Guide.

Part B: Three Steps to Your Family's Care and Support Plan

Step One: Achieving a SHARED ASSESSMENT of What's Needed

The Shared Assessment includes underlying health considerations, environmental considerations, what help is required, who is helping now, and when.

The best care and support arrangement starts with agreement about what's needed. This is not always easy! Families don't always see eye-to-eye, not only about what's needed and what's happening, but also about how much risk to take, like staying alone, driving, preparing meals, or bathing alone. By exchanging your Individual Tools, you have openly shared how you see things and where you stand. That's an important start.

Referring to your completed Individual Tools and notes, go through each item and complete the Shared Assessment as a family. Examples of how to complete each tool are provided in this guide.

As you go through each tool, the Recorder will write your family's agreements in the Family Meeting Record which will serve as your family's "official" record of your meeting. The Shared Assessment begins on pg. 7 of this Family Meeting Record.

A few notes as you move from tool to tool and item to item:

- » Be ready to talk about those things that caught your eye during the Individual Tools exchange — where you see eye to eye and where you have differences.
- » If you have major differences on some of the items, see the "How Do We Deal With Major Differences During Our Family Meeting?" tip sheet located on the OFOW website.
- » When all is said and done, you may still be left with areas where you can't agree or are undecided right now. You'll have an opportunity to include these areas in your Family Care and Support Plan and you will also address them in Part C when you discuss your Follow-up Plan.

Shared Assessment: Underlying Health Considerations

Incorporating the information from each family member's Individual Tools (Individual Tools pg. 7), create a shared assessment of how limitations in the following areas affect the PWCN's ability to carry out daily living and self-care activities. Check the column that best describes the PWCN's current health situation. If everyone can't agree right now on whether the PWCN experiences limitations in a certain area, check the "Can't agree" column.

Shared Assessment: What Help is Required and Who's Helping Now?

Incorporating the information from each family member's individual tool (Individual Tools pgs. 11 - 14), create a shared assessment of what help is required and who's helping now. If the activity does not apply to the PWCN, check "not applicable" (N/A). If everyone can't agree right now about what help is required, who is helping, or what devices are used and needed, check the "Can't agree" box in each of those sections.

Readiness for Step Two

Step Two is working toward a shared goal(s) statement for your family.

How ready do you feel to move on to Step Two?

Do you need to take a break...a few minutes?...a few days?

Is it time to call in a professional counselor or mediator?

Step Two: Working Toward a Statement of Shared Goals

Now that you have a shared assessment of what's needed, including who's helping and when, it's time to talk about what's wanted in your family's care and support arrangement.

In your Individual Tools, each family member was asked to write their ultimate goal for your family's care and support arrangement and to list 3 realistic changes that could be made by them to help achieve that goal.

Take a moment now for each family member to share their “ultimate goal” from pg. 21 of their Individual Tools.

Shared Goal(s) Statement

Now, taking into consideration the ultimate goals of each family member, write a shared goal(s) statement.

Do your best to come up with a shared goal(s) statement for your family that takes into account everyone's ultimate goals. Where there is disagreement, or where your goals compete with each other, leave those issues alone for a while. For now, only write a goal(s) statement that everyone can agree on, no matter how brief or incomplete it may seem. Write your family's shared goal(s) statement below.

Our family's shared goal(s):

“As a result of our family's care and support arrangement, we want the following to happen:”

We hope this goal(s) statement will be a useful guide as you make decisions about the care and support arrangement.

What changes do you want in the care and support arrangement?

Now that you have determined what you want as a family, think about what needs to change in the care and support arrangement in order for that to happen. Take a moment now for each family member to share the 3 realistic changes they wrote on pg. 21 of their Individual Tools.

As you prepare for Step Three, keep these possible changes in mind as you create your Family Care and Support Plan. This is an opportunity to make decisions based on straightforward communication. No guessing, imagining, wondering, or presuming.

Readiness for Step Three

Step Three is arriving at the best possible care and support arrangement for your family.

How ready do you feel to move on to Step Three?

Do you need to take a break...a few minutes?...a few days?

Is it time to call in a professional counselor or mediator?

Step Three: Arriving at the Best Possible Care and Support Arrangement for Your Family

Now you're ready to create a Family Care and Support Plan that will designate who will do what and when for the areas you've addressed in your Shared Assessment. Your plan will also include a back-up plan for when the unexpected happens, an opportunity to think about when some family members or others could provide occasional help, and how some family members may be able to contribute financial or other resources.

Take a few minutes to review what you read in each other's Individual Tools about what's POSSIBLE (Individual Tools pgs. 24 - 27).

As you prepare to complete your Family Care and Support Plan, keep your shared goal(s) statement in mind and pay attention to the following:

- » Where are the gaps in the arrangement?
- » Where do you have differences? (That is, where you can't agree or are undecided.)
- » What physical, emotional, social, and financial impact does the care and support arrangement — as it stands — have on each family member?
- » What are each individual's abilities, availability, limitations, and preferences? What changes did they think they could make?
- » Are we missing opportunities for each other to be involved?

When you're ready, turn the page and start creating your Family Care and Support Plan.

Plan for Addressing Underlying Health Considerations:

Referring to the Shared Assessment on pg. 7 of this Family Meeting Record, review the underlying health considerations. Are there underlying health limitations that could be improved? If so, for those limitations only, indicate what steps might be taken, who will take the lead, who else will be involved, and when the steps will be taken. If everyone still can't agree, or are undecided about what to do, check the "Can't agree or Undecided" column. You will revisit "Can't agree or Undecided" areas later in your Follow-up Plan.

Extended Family or Friends or Community Services

Take a moment to revisit extended family (family other than the spouse/partner and adult children) or friends or community services who may be able to provide some of the care and support (Individual Tools pg. 27). Identify the individual(s) or the service(s) and the care and support they might provide . Your local Area Agency on Aging or other resources in the Helpful Caregiving Resources booklet (located on the OFOW website) can assist you in identifying community services available in your area.

Plan for Care and Support Activities

Referring to the Shared Assessment on pgs. 11 - 13 of this Family Meeting Record, review the care or support activities required. If the item doesn't apply, check "N/A." If the PWCN will do the care themselves, check "PWCN Self-care." If the care or support will be provided by a spouse/partner, adult child, extended family or friends or formal services, write the name in the appropriate column. Care and support can be provided by more than one person. If everyone is unable to decide on certain care and support activities for now, check "Can't agree or Undecided." You will revisit "Can't agree or Undecided" areas later in your Follow-up Plan.

Master Calendar

Referring to the calendar in the Shared Assessment on pg. 14 of this Family Meeting Record, complete the calendar below to make decisions about who will provide care and support. For times of day when no help is required, draw an X through the time. For times when someone will help, write the name in those times. Where you still have gaps, circle those times. You will address those gaps later in your Follow-up Plan.

Back-up Plan

Sometimes the unexpected happens (illness, emergencies) and the care and support arrangement you’ve agreed to falls apart. Other times, the usual caregiver(s) is/are not available because of vacations or important events (weddings, graduations). Take a few moments to think and make notes below about a back-up plan for when the “usual” caregiver(s) is/are not available. Write the back-up plan below.

Occasional Help

When all is said and done, some family members can only help occasionally. What are some things those family members could do to add to the care and support arrangement? Some examples include taking the PWCN out for a drive or to lunch, visiting, and helping to find out more about a needed resource. Write down who might help occasionally below.

WHO	TYPE OF HELP	WHEN

Contributing Financial or Other Resources

When it comes to care and support decisions, discussing finances can be tough. When you each thought about What’s Possible in your Individual Tools (Individual Tools pgs. 24 - 26), there was a space to indicate financial or other resources you might contribute. Take a few moments to discuss what that looks like here. You do not need to write down specific amounts, and writing it here does not mean that the person is required to provide it. This is just to get you thinking about ways that family members might contribute other than or in addition to providing hands-on help.

For example,

- » Dad says “Since I’m no longer driving, you can use my car to take me to appointments/run errands and I’ll pay for the gas.”
- » Siblings who live at a distance help pay for home care services to give the usual caregiver(s) a break.
- » Daughter agrees to help with the cost of a Lifeline.
- » Siblings pay health care premiums for their brother who gave up his job to care full-time for mom.
- » Son-in-law loans his old laptop to Mom and Dad to help them stay in touch.

Some families actually decide to directly compensate family members for the care they provide. In the Helpful Caregiving Resources booklet, you’ll find a resource about personal care agreements, “How to Compensate a Family Member for Providing Care,” which was created by the Family Caregiver Alliance. Use the space below for notes, concerns, or agreements about contributing financial or other resources.

Readiness for Part C

Part C is thinking about What's Next and creating a Follow-up Plan.

How ready do you feel to move on to Part C?

Do you need to take a break...a few minutes?...a few days?

Is it time to call in a professional counselor or mediator?

The Follow-up Plan (What's next?)

Now that you have completed your Family Care and Support Plan, what's next? It's important to have a plan for checking in with each other and revisiting the care and support arrangement; otherwise the work you've done so far may get lost in the busyness of daily life. Revisiting the care and support arrangement also ensures that you are staying up to date with changing needs and circumstances.

Plan for Ongoing Communication and Care Coordination

Ongoing communication and coordination is vital to keeping the care and support arrangement working for everyone involved. To have good communication, it's important to consider what kinds of information need to be communicated, what types of communication work for your family, and how often that communication should happen. Take a few minutes to consider the following:

- » What kinds of information will be communicated and to whom?
- » Is there information that the person with care needs does not wish to share with other family members?
- » Is there information that certain family members do not wish to know?
- » What are the preferred methods of communication in your family? What methods work best for each of you? (telephone, texting, email, Skype, FaceTime?)
- » How often should you communicate? Daily? Weekly? Monthly?
- » Will there be a "point person" for communication? Will certain family members be responsible for communicating certain information and to whom? (e.g., whoever accompanies Dad to a doctor's appointment will communicate what happened, was learned, any changes in medications, etc.)

Plan for Ongoing Revision to What's Needed, Wanted, and Possible

Care and support needs and circumstances can and will change over time. What's working today may not work further down the road. Thinking ahead may help your family avoid having to make decisions in a time of crisis.

How will you revisit what's needed, wanted, and possible? Will you use these tools or some other system? Use the space below for notes, concerns, or agreements about your plan for ongoing revisions.

Plan for Meeting Again

Getting everyone together to discuss the care and support arrangement periodically is a good way to ensure that everyone's voices are heard. There may be unresolved items or issues that require further consideration. You may choose to set regular meetings (e.g., monthly, every 6 months) or plan your meetings one at a time. Not all meetings need to be face-to-face. Do what works for your family. On the OFOW website, you'll find a sample agenda for follow-up meetings.

When will you meet again to review the care and support arrangement? Use the space below for notes, concerns, or agreements.

Plan for Revisiting Unresolved Areas

Finally, it's important to list those areas that are unfinished or unresolved at the end of this meeting. To do this, go through your Family Care and Support Plan (pgs. 20 - 46 in this Family Meeting Record). Find those areas where you can't agree or are undecided, or where there are gaps in care and support and note areas to revisit below:

For now, you have agreed to disagree and that's actually a start! This is now a "to-do" list of sorts and becomes part of your plan as you move forward. Each time you meet, make it a priority to address these issues. It may be helpful to refer again to the "How Do We Deal With Major Differences During Our Family Meeting?" tip sheet on the OFOW website.

Importantly, you may find that bringing in a professional to help you work through these unresolved areas can be valuable to all of you. Your local Area Agency on Aging can provide referrals for professionals such as counselors, social workers, or family mediators in your area. Some resources for locating professionals can also be found in the Helpful Caregiving Resources booklet.

You've completed your family meeting!

We hope this process has been helpful and that you continue working together to maintain the best possible care and support arrangement for your family, your family's way.
